

Standards of Practice

Amended January 1, 2022

Massage Therapist Association of Alberta

Standards of Practice

Standards of Practice

The Massage Therapist Association of Alberta (MTAA) has developed the Standards of Practice for members based on the approved Core Competency guidelines. Through the development and use of these Standards the MTAA continues to display its commitment to serving its members and promoting the highest possible quality of massage therapy practice in a safe, competent and ethical manner.

The Standards of Practice are intended to be generic and have been developed to describe the outcomes of the various tasks the therapist is required to perform within the Scope of Practice. The Standards of Practice describe how well a therapist is expected to perform. How to perform each task is determined by the minimum competencies taught through the educational institutions. MTAA members must perform only those massage therapy techniques that they have been adequately trained to perform, and should exercise their professional judgement in applying these Standards of Practice to each individual client situation.

The Standards of Practice have been adapted to be specific to the MTAA and form a live, dynamic document that will evolve as changes in practice evolve. Special acknowledgement is extended to the College of Massage Therapists of Ontario (CMTO) for their framework.

Purpose

The Standards of Practice have been developed to provide practice guidelines which all MTAA members are responsible for following. These Standards serve as a reference tool for:

- MTAA members
- Massage therapy educators
- MTAA Board of Directors
- MTAA Complaints and Discipline Committees
- Professional colleagues, including other health care providers
- The public, by providing objective standards by which to assess the quality of treatment.

Confidentiality Statement

Massage therapists are advised that giving information about a client to any person except as required or allowed by law without the client's expressed consent is considered to be professional misconduct.

Accountability for Standards

The MTAA member is only held accountable to meet a Standard if they are the person who has performed the task.

Massage therapists are also accountable to the following pieces of legislation:

- Personal Information Protection Act (PIPA)
- Health Information Act (HIA)

Massage Therapist Association of Alberta Standards of Practice

Glossary of Terms:

A Standard of Practice consists of three inter-related subcomponents that describe:

Conditions:

Conditions describe the situation in which the task must be accomplished, including any resources, tools, materials, etc. that are given/available.

Task:

A task is a description of what an MTAA member is expected to accomplish.

Standard:

A standard is a description of a minimum level of performance one is required to demonstrate in the achievement of a task.

A standard is stated in observable and measurable terms. It must be precise and clear to the member who is held accountable for accomplishing it. It must also be clear to the clients and the public (who assess the massage therapist's ability to accomplish a task as measured by the required standard).

Standards include one or more of the following measures:

- Technical Quality
- Interpersonal Quality
- Safety
- Timeliness

Prepare the Treatment Area

Conditions:

In a treatment area, using disinfecting products, cleaning materials, massage equipment, and freshly laundered linen.

Task:

Prepare the treatment area.

Standard:

Quality / Technical:

- Ensure that the room and equipment surfaces have been cleaned and/or disinfected in accordance with Alberta Health Services' recommendations.
- So that you use only sheets, towels, and any other linens that have been freshly laundered.
- So that any linens that come in contact with the client have not been used by a prior client.
- So that linen used for draping will allow for full coverage of the client.

Safety:

- So that any mirrors in the treatment room are not placed in any location that would allow the massage therapist to view, or result in the client perceiving that the massage therapist may view the client's exposed body.
- So that there is adequate lighting in the room to allow the client to safely get on and off the table.
- So that the linens and pillows do not interfere with the client's ability to get on and off the table.
- So that any obstacle or substance that could make the floor slippery is removed from the treatment room to prevent accidental falls.
- So that equipment is properly maintained, and that manufacturer's instructions are followed correctly.
- So that the transference of infectious diseases is prevented as much as possible.

Timing:

- Prior to the client entering the treatment area.

Informed Consent

Conditions:

Given that the assessment/re-assessment or treatment is ready to begin.

Task:

Obtain the client's consent to perform the assessment/re-assessment or treatment.

Standard:

Quality / Technical:

- So that the proposed assessment/re-assessment or treatment is consistent with the MTAA Scope of Practice, indicated according to the client's presentation, and in the client's best interest.
- So that consent is obtained voluntarily.
- So that consent is not obtained through misrepresentation or fraud.
- So that the massage therapist identifies and consults with an appropriate co-decision or substitute decision maker if the capacity of an adult client is questioned or not present.
- So that if the client is under the age of 18, the massage therapist:
 - Determines whether the client has capacity to be considered a mature minor by considering:
 - Their age and maturity.
 - The reason for treatment and what the treatment plan involves.
 - The areas of the body, disrobing and draping involved.
 - Whether the minor client understands the information provided and how it applies to them.
 - When necessary, identifies, consults with, and obtains consent from the client's parent(s) or legal guardian(s).

Quality/Interpersonal:

- So that all information presented to the client is explained using language that is appropriate to that client's level of understanding.
- So that the client is told the nature and purpose of the proposed assessment/re-assessment and/or treatment including the areas of the body involved, and options for positioning, disrobing and draping.
- So that the client is informed of any risks, benefits, possible complications and any contraindications of the assessment/re-assessment and/or treatment.
- So that the client is informed that assessment/re-assessment or treatment will be stopped or modified at any time, at their request.
- So that the massage therapist informs the client that they will be checking periodically to determine the client's level of comfort.
- So that the client is given time to consider their options and given an opportunity and encouragement to ask any questions.

Massage Therapist Association of Alberta

Standards of Practice

Safety:

- So that the massage therapist ceases the action being taken if the client withdraws their consent at any time.
- So that the massage therapist is aware of and responds to any non-verbal cues or indications that the client wishes to modify or revoke consent.

Timing:

- Before beginning the assessment/re-assessment and/or treatment.
- Any time there is a change in the client's condition or the treatment plan.
- So that you record informed consent in the client's clinical record as soon as possible, within 24 hours of treatment, and includes information regarding:
 - If capacity was questioned, reasons why, and what actions were taken to identify a co-decision or substitute decision maker.
 - The areas of the body involved.
 - If consent was refused or revoked and any reasons provided by the client.

Determine the Client's Condition by Conducting an Assessment/Re-Assessment

Conditions:

Given information about a client's treatment goals, client's health history, the client's consent and/or that on-going treatment is taking place and a scheduled re-assessment is due.

Task:

Determine the client's condition by using history and observation to formulate a clinical impression and if indicated, conduct a differential assessment and/or re-assessment to confirm the clinical impression.

Standard:

Quality / Interpersonal

- So that you discontinue the assessment if requested by the client.
- So that the Boundaries Standards are followed if undressing or undraping is required prior to, during or following conducting the assessment/re-assessment.

Quality / Technical and Safety:

- So that you refer the client to other health care professionals for conditions that you cannot assess or if the need for referral is indicated in the assessment or re-assessment, for example:
 - severe unremitting pain
 - severe pain with no history of injury
- The assessment must include an examination of the following (if indicated):
 - any acute/sub-acute and chronic conditions and/or any acute or chronic pain, so that it is described as to location, type, duration, origin, pattern, triggering phenomena, intensity and quality.
 - central nervous system lesions and/or conditions.
 - peripheral nervous system lesions and/or conditions.
 - range of motion of joints and muscles (active, passive, and resisting) without forcing movements beyond the client's current abilities.
 - flexibility of the soft tissues so that you identify any limitations to movement.
- So that the assessment includes evidence of tenderness, tension, temperature, tone, and texture.
- So that all testing is done bi-laterally.
- So that you identify any physical conditions that are treatable by massage therapy.
- So that you identify any physical conditions that may preclude general or local massage therapy treatment or require treatment adaptation.
- So that the assessment includes the identification of potential risks associated with massage treatment in the presence of a contraindication.
- So that the effectiveness or completion of the treatment plan can be determined, based on the original goal of treatment.
- So that a decision can be made to continue, modify/change, or stop the treatment plan.

Massage Therapist Association of Alberta

Determine if Massage Therapy Treatment is Indicated

Conditions:

Given the client's completed health history and your assessment of the client's condition.

Task:

Determine if massage therapy treatment is indicated.

Standard:

Quality / Technical:

- So that the massage therapist uses the information gathered to formulate a professional opinion in the best interest of the client.
- So that the process of determining whether massage therapy treatment is indicated, and any referral that is made is documented in the client's health record.

Safety:

- So that the massage therapist modifies the proposed treatment plan to account for any relevant precautions or contraindications.
- So that the massage therapist refers the client to an appropriate and qualified health care provider if massage therapy treatment is not indicated.

Treatment and Treatment Plans

Explain the Initial Treatment to the Client

Conditions:

Given that massage therapy treatment is indicated.

Task:

Explain the proposed initial treatment to the client as well as the rationale.

Standard:

Quality / Technical:

- So that the treatment is consistent with the MTAA Scope of Practice.
- So that any changes in the client's wishes regarding consent are obtained before each treatment and are followed.

Quality/ Interpersonal:

- So that the client is given an opportunity to ask any questions.

Timing:

- Before beginning the treatment.

Develop and Record an On-Going Treatment Plan

Conditions:

Given that on-going massage therapy treatment is indicated and given the client's request for treatment and your assessment of the client's condition.

Task:

Develop and record an on-going treatment plan.

Standard:

Quality / Technical:

- The plan must include: goals, type and focus of treatment(s), areas of the body to be treated, anticipated frequency and duration of treatments, anticipated client responses to treatment, schedule for reassessment of the client's condition, and/or recommended homecare.
- So that the plan is consistent with the MTAA Scope of Practice.

Timing:

- After the first massage treatment and update whenever treatment plan is altered.

Massage Therapist Association of Alberta Standards of Practice

Inform the Client of Any Change in the Treatment Plan

Conditions:

Given that the client informed you of changes in their wishes, their physical condition or health status, and/or you identified a change in the client's condition and/or a lack of client response to treatment, requiring a change in the treatment plan.

Task:

Inform client of the proposed change in treatment plan as well as the rationale.

Standard:

Quality / Interpersonal

- So that you ask the client if they have any questions.
- So that you answer the client's questions and/or refer them to another health care professional for questions that are not within the massage therapist's Scope of Practice.

Quality / Technical:

- So that the information conveyed to the client includes what the changes to the treatment plan are, and why.
- So that you obtain and record consent from the client for all changes to the treatment plan.

Timing:

- Before continuing with massage treatment.

- So that you explain to the client the reasons for the recommended removal of clothing.
- So that you advise the client to remove the clothing and items which they are comfortable removing.
- So that you provide the client with an opportunity to ask questions.
- So that you provide the client an opportunity to dress/undress privately.
- So that you get permission from the client to re-enter the area after providing an adequate amount of time for them dress/undress.
- If the client requires assistance to dress/undress themselves:
 - So that you remove only those pieces of clothing the client provides consent to remove.
 - So that you inform the client of where you might touch them and why, obtaining informed consent.
 - So that you touch only those areas of the client's body needed to remove the client's clothing.
 - So that you record the client's consent and the assistance provided.
 - So that all efforts are made to maintain respectful privacy of the client by use of covering, while assisting them to dress/undress.

Task:

Advise the client on treatment positioning and covering.

Standard:

Quality / Technical:

- So that you obtain client agreement to the treatment position(s).
- So that the instructions include how the client should position their body for treatment.
- So that the client is advised as to use of the sheets to cover themselves once they are in position for treatment, if they are undressed. (Please see the Boundaries Standard regarding draping).
- If the client requires assistance on or off the massage table:
 - So that you modify the assistance approach so as to minimize the client's physical discomfort.

Undrape the Client for Treatment

Conditions:

Given the client is positioned for the treatment.

Task:

Undrape the client for treatment.

Standard:

Quality / Technical:

- So that the draping is secured.
- So that only those areas currently being treated are undraped.
- So that the client's genitalia or gluteal cleft are not exposed.
- So that breasts are not exposed except when being treated in accordance with the Technique Standards.
- Notwithstanding all of the above, it is acceptable for a client to be so exposed within the circumstances of labour or child delivery, if
 - The accommodation is required to effectively deliver massage therapy services requested by the client or her designate,
 - The client or their designate directly request this accommodation,
 - The therapist has ensured that consent is properly obtained with the accommodation recorded, and
 - All reasonable efforts continue to be made by the massage therapist to ensure privacy and respect for the client.
- Infants may be treated undraped with consent of a parent/guardian or substitute decision maker.

Quality / Interpersonal:

So that the massage therapist:

- Obtains consent to uncover any area of the body before undraping.
- Inquires as to the client's comfort and makes any necessary adjustments.
- Offers alternative draping options or options for treating over clothing or sheets.
- Never reaches under or past the border of the draping.

Treating Family or Friends

Conditions:

Family or friends of a massage therapist are seeking massage therapy services from a practitioner with whom they have an existing personal relationship.

Task:

To ensure that professional boundaries are maintained when the client is the massage therapist's friend or family member, and to manage the risks associated with the resulting dual relationship. These risks include but are not limited to:

- Making assumptions regarding health history, treatment tolerance/client comfort, or payment.
- Missing or withholding of relevant information.
- Preferential treatment.
- Absent or incomplete documentation.
- Real or perceived insurance fraud where third party coverage is sought.

Standard:

Quality / Technical:

So that the massage therapist:

- Avoids treating anyone with whom they have a sexual/romantic relationship, including their spouse, or any other immediate family member.
- Only in exceptional circumstances treats family members or someone with whom they have a close personal relationship. Exceptional circumstances may exist where:
 - There is no other similar or viable healthcare provider available;
 - There is a demonstrated financial hardship on the part of the client;
 - The client's level of distrust and/or discomfort is such that it would be impossible for them to seek treatment from a practitioner whom they do not know; or
 - There exists a real barrier to the client accessing other health care services (for example, a severe communication disability).

Quality / Interpersonal

So that the massage therapist:

- Clearly communicates to the client when the massage therapist is acting in a professional capacity.
- Maintains all of the principles of the therapeutic relationship during treatment and personal interactions. The therapist is extra vigilant in practicing:
 - Confidentiality and client privacy.
 - Thorough interviews and assessments.
 - Equal treatment/objectivity.
 - Thorough and complete documentation.

To ensure that professional boundaries are maintained when considering giving or receiving gifts within the therapeutic relationship.

Standard:

Quality / Technical:

So that:

- All gifts of a significant value (either monetary or sentimental) given/received should be documented in the client's record. The massage therapist must use their professional judgement to determine if the gift is of significant value to the client.

Quality / Interpersonal

- The massage therapist should consider if it could reasonably be perceived that the offering of a gift is intended to influence or increase the power the client holds within the therapist-client relationship. If it is interpreted as such, the therapist should decline the gift and re-establish the expectations of the therapeutic relationship.
- The therapist must not allow gift giving/receiving to influence their professional decision-making nor allow it to impact the frequency, duration, cost, or modality used for/with the client.

Safety:

Task:

To ensure that sexual abuse of clients is prevented and reporting of sexual abuse by other health professionals occurs.

Standard:

Quality / Technical:

- So that sexual abuse by massage therapists is prohibited. “Sexual abuse” includes:
 - Behaviour or remarks of a sexual nature
 - Touching of a sexual nature
 - Sexual intercourse or any form of physical sexual relations

Quality / Interpersonal

So that the massage therapist:

- Takes steps to prevent the occurrence of unintentional or incidental physical contact with the client’s body by potentially sexualized areas of the massage therapist’s body.
- Recognizes and takes steps to minimize the occurrence of unintentional or incidental physical contact with potentially sexualized areas of a client’s body.
- Responds appropriately if unintentional or incidental physical contact with potentially sexualized areas of the client’s body occurs, stops treatment, obtains client consent before continuing with treatment, and documents the incident in the client’s health record.

Safety:

- So that the massage therapist communicates clearly and respectfully with the client regarding any potential, perceived, or actual occurrences of interactions of a sexual nature.
- So that the massage therapist is committed to protecting the physical and emotional health of the client.

Timing:

- So that the massage therapist addresses any situation related to sexual abuse immediately upon recognizing it.

Task:

To obtain informed consent for the inclusion of treatment of sensitive areas of the body in the proposed treatment plan and to provide such treatment within the client's comfort and the massage therapist's Scope of Practice.

Standard:

Quality / Technical:

So that the massage therapist:

- Obtains informed consent as per Client Communication Standard 3.
- Uses appropriate draping techniques as per Boundaries Standard 10.
- Records the details regarding client consent, positioning and draping, and treatment techniques applied to the relevant sensitive areas.

Quality / Interpersonal:

So that the massage therapist:

- Is aware and respectful of clients' personal understanding and opinions regarding the treatment of sensitive areas.
- Provides the client with an alternative proposed treatment plan which does not include the treatment of sensitive areas.

Safety:

- So that the massage therapist applies their professional knowledge and judgement to determine whether treatment to any sensitive areas is clinically indicated.
- So that the massage therapist clearly communicates with the client and is responsive to any verbal and/or non-verbal cues from the client.
- So that the massage therapist provides the client with a referral to another practitioner if they cannot competently perform the indicated treatment to sensitive areas.

Timing:

- The massage therapist obtains informed consent from the client to proceed with the treatment of sensitive areas prior to the client getting on to the massage table.
- The massage therapist obtains the client's consent for any proposed changes to the treatment plan prior to proceeding.

Standard:

Quality / Technical:

So that the massage therapist:

- Is aware of the symptoms of the infectious disease.
- Uses a screening tool to identify clients at risk of carrying or at risk from exposure, if available.
- Uses protective barriers if the status of the client is unknown, or as recommended by health authorities.
- Cleans and disinfects the clinic area with approved antiseptic cleansers.
- Follows any directive issued by the Province or local public health unit.

Quality / Interpersonal:

- So that the client is informed of the reason for screening and precautions.
- So that the massage therapist provides the client with an opportunity to ask questions.

Safety:

- So that clients who are at risk of carrying or at risk from exposure are not treated or are treated in isolation with all surface areas of the clinic area cleansed appropriately directly after treatment to reduce spread of the disease.

Task:

Perform the massage therapy treatment:

- Without spreading infection.
- While using personal protective equipment.

Standard:

Quality / Interpersonal:

- So that you explain why the use of gloves, masks or suitable alternative or other barrier is necessary or recommended.
- So that the client is given an opportunity to ask questions.

Quality / Technical:

- So that the use of Personal Protective Equipment aligns with Alberta Health Services' guidelines.
- So that the affected area on the client is avoided as much as possible.
- So that the affected area of the therapist's arm, hand, and/or fingers is totally covered to prevent contact.
- So that in the case of an airborne infectious disease both the therapist and the client wear a mask before, during and after treatment.

Safety:

- So that if these options are not possible or available that the treatment be altered, terminated, or postponed.
- So that the risk of allergies has been discussed and identified.

Introduction to the Standards for Specific Massage Therapy Techniques

There are Standards that apply in general to the performance of massage therapy techniques. These universal Standards are to be met in the performance of all techniques in massage therapy treatment.

Conditions:

Given that the client's treatment plan includes one or more massage therapy techniques.

Task:

Perform the technique(s) correctly and in such a way that they are well integrated in the treatment, and that the treatment plan is executed with the client's consent and is consistent with the principles of massage.

Standard:

Quality / Interpersonal:

So that the massage therapist:

- Does not use a technique, or continue its use, if the client indicates a preference not to use it.
- Makes the client aware that some techniques may cause adverse reactions, depending on how they are applied, and the condition being treated.
- Treats within the client's pain tolerance and gives the client the opportunity to provide feedback using a previously discussed pain scale.

Quality / Technical:

- So that the four basic principles of massage are applied:
 - superficial, deep, superficial
 - general, specific, general
 - proximal, distal, proximal
 - peripheral, central, peripheral

Perform a Stroking Technique

Conditions:

Given that the client's treatment plan indicates the need for stroking technique.

Task:

Perform a stroking technique.

Standard:

Quality / Technical:

- So that stroking is performed through client's covering or directly on the skin.
- So that if the purpose of stroking is to achieve a relaxation effect the technique is soothing, slow, and even.
- So that if the purpose of stroking is to achieve a stimulating effect the technique is brisk.

Safety:

- So that stroking is not used or is modified if a contraindication to this technique exists.

Task:

Perform a rocking or shaking technique.

Standard:

Quality / Technical:

- So that the massage therapist rock to create movement around a joint and shake to move the soft tissue.

Safety:

So that the massage therapist:

- Treats within the client's agreed upon pain tolerance.
- Takes special precaution, based on your assessment, with any client who is prone to joint subluxation/dislocation, or joint disease, inflammation or effusion or compromised integrity of the adjoining soft tissue.
- Does not apply or modifies the rocking or shaking technique if a contraindication to this technique exists.

- So that the massage therapist's fingers do not glide over the client's skin.
- So that friction is performed specifically on the site of an adhesion or lesion.
- So that following the application of friction, the fibres are stretched.

Quality / Interpersonal:

So that the massage therapist:

- Informs the client that applying frictions may cause adverse reactions.
- Inquires as to the client's comfort with regard to the level of pressure and pain.
- Stops or modifies treatment immediately when the client indicates an unexpected increase in pain or a positive change in the tissue.

Safety:

- So that following the application of a friction technique where inflammation is a response, ice is applied to the friction site following the stretch.
- So that medication history is considered before applying frictions.
- So that friction is not used or is modified if a contraindication to this technique exists.

- So that trigger points are identified correctly, as indicated by at least two of the following:
 - local tenderness within a taut band of muscle
 - local twitch response, and/or a client's report of referred pain
 - tenderness, or autonomic phenomenon pattern.

Quality / Interpersonal:

- So that you stop the assessment of trigger points immediately if the client requests.

Treat Myofascial Trigger Points

Conditions:

Given that a trigger point has been identified.

Task:

Treat myofascial trigger points.

Standard:

Quality / Technical:

- So that the treatment technique is applied until the client reports that the level of referred pain either decreases or is eliminated, or they request that the technique be discontinued.
- So that the massage therapist discontinues the technique if the referred pain does not diminish.
- So that following the treatment of the trigger point the treated muscle is stretched.

Quality / Interpersonal:

- So that the client is informed that the treatment of myofascial trigger points may cause adverse reactions.

Standard:

Quality / Technical:

- So that the joint is in a loose-pack position.
- So that the joint is taken up to the elastic barrier but not beyond, within the client's pain tolerance.

Safety:

So that the massage therapist:

- Assesses the joint for pain prior to treatment by using a gentle, controlled traction.
- Treats the client within their agreed upon pain tolerance.

Standard:

Quality / Technical:

- So that the tissues around the joint are warmed and stretched prior to joint mobilization.
- So that the directions of mobilization are correct for that specific capsular pattern.
- So that the joint is in a loose-pack position.
- So that the joint is taken to the end of its physiological range of motion, and then slightly beyond the physiological range of motion, within the client's comfort level.
- So that the accessory movement and physiological movements may be improved.
- So that high velocity low amplitude thrust techniques are not used to the spine.

Safety:

So that the massage therapist:

- Assesses the joint for pain prior to treatment by using a gentle, controlled traction.
- Treats within the client's agreed upon pain tolerance.
- Takes special precaution, based on the assessment, with any client who is prone to joint subluxation/dislocation, or joint disease, inflammation or effusion or compromised integrity of the adjoining soft tissue.

Conditions:

Given that the client's treatment plan includes one or more additional massage therapy techniques.

Task:

Perform the technique(s) correctly and in such a way that they are well integrated in the treatment, and that the treatment plan is executed with the client's consent, and all aspects of the modality in use are within the scope of practice.

Standard:

Quality/ Interpersonal:

So that the massage therapist:

- Explains the treatment plan and obtains consent in accordance with Client Communication Standard 3.
- Does not use a technique, or continue its use, if the client indicates a preference not to use it.
- Ensures that the client is aware that some techniques may cause adverse reactions, depending on how they are applied, and the condition being treated.
- Treats within the client's pain tolerance and gives the client the opportunity to provide feedback using a previously discussed pain scale.

Quality / Technical:

So that the massage therapist:

- Ensures that they have the necessary knowledge, skills and judgment to safely and effectively apply the additional massage therapy technique.
- Does not practice the additional massage therapy technique if they do not have the educational qualifications required.
